PROGETTO FUOCO REACHES ITS TENTH EDITION

35 COMPANIES HAVE TAKEN PART IN EVERY SINGLE ONE!

All of the countries in Europe still had their own currencies (the Euro was introduced two years later) when PMT organized the first Progetto Fuoco at Verona Exhibition Centre from 18 to 21 March 1999. The first and only Italian stove and fireplace show occupied two halls and attracted 135 exhibitors and 15,000 visitors. The aim of the exhibition/convention was to showcase new cost-effective and environmentally friendly wood-fired energy production solutions.

Right from the start, both the exhibition and the convention programme focused the attention of members of the trade and the public on the ground-breaking offerings on display. Great emphasis was placed on the importance of safeguarding health and the environment by using innovative, state-of-the-art heating systems, which also help to protect Italy's vast heritage of forests from the detrimental environmental impact of abandonment and decline.

Progetto Fuoco has come a long way since then. After finding its feet as an annual event for the first two years, it has been a biennial exhibition since 2002, by which time the number of exhibitors and visitors had already increased to 308 and 30,000 respectively. It has been a truly international affair since 2004, when there were 369 exhibitors and 35,000 highly knowledgeable visitors. The numbers have kept on increasing and at the last event in 2014 there were 653 exhibitors and a record-breaking 75,000 visitors.

At its tenth edition from 24 to 28 February 2016, Progetto Fuoco aims to reach even greater heights. Visitors will be travelling from all over the globe to the world-leading event to see 750 exhibitors (marking an increase of 15% on the last edition, with 300 non-Italian exhibitors from 36 different countries) in a vast exhibition area spanning 105,000 m<sup>2</sup>. There will be 250 operating stoves, fireplaces, boilers, range-based heating systems and other pieces of equipment connected to special extraction systems that were created in 2000 and expanded in subsequent years, taking them to a level that no other exhibition centre in Europe can match.

All of these facts and figures underline the ingenuity of the original idea, which has been developed over the years by Piemmeti SpA, a subsidiary of Veronafiere.

Here is a list of the companies that have been present ever since the first edition:
